Spanish Insurgents Declared Aware Of Der Fuehrer Danger

(By Associated Press)

Great Britain and France prepared anew on land and sea for trouble in Morocco [illegible] directly to General Francisco Franco, burly dictator-designate of Spain's Fascist [illegible].

Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler, who denied "regular" German troops have invaded Spanish Morocco, had conciliatory words and expressed desires for "a real reconciliation among peoples" for assembled diplomats in Berlin—but no word on Spain.

Britain moved again to demand directly that interested governments stop sending volunteers to the "little World war" [illegible] in Spain.

France was due to follow suit and [illegible] believed Italy might also. An Italian commentator indicated Italy would not be too pleased at the prospect of German domination of Mediterranean Morocco.

Rising temperatures and fair weather today brought the middlewest surcease from its coldest spell of the winter but deep snows still hampered the Rocky Mountain region and some east central states felt the threat of flood waters.

A force of 16,000 orchardists battling to save California's $100,000,000 citrus crop from destruction by sub-freezing weather were cheered by predictions of higher temperatures. Damage already done to the orange and lemon crops was estimated unofficially at 15 per cent.

National guard fliers dropped foodstuffs for 35 men marooned at an Inyo county, California, sulphur mine but failed to find nine persons reported snow bound at a gold mine north of Las Vegas, Nev. A rescue party battled drifts to bring food to Indians at a camp northeast of Kingman, Ariz.

At least 27 deaths were attributed to the weather in the west. Fifteen were in California, four in Arizona, three in Utah and five in Texas.

SURGEON'S KNIFE SAVES UNBORN BABE OF DYING MOTHER

As Mrs. Elsie Randall (left) lay dying in a hospital at Oakland, Calif., of a bullet wound in her head, doctors performed a quick Caesarian operation and safely removed her unborn baby. The normal, seven-pound boy is shown (center) a few minutes after the operation. Ten minutes after he was delivered, the mother died. Police said Mrs. Randall was shot by her estranged husband, Ray Randall (right), following her refusal of his plea for reconciliation. (Associated Press Photos)

'I Don't Like You---Or Your Music,' Says Man Who Slew Jazz Pianist

'Well, Ain't That A Hell Of A Thing To Do—Kill A Man When He's Having Fun,' Says Slayer, Viewing Corpse

CHICAGO, Jan. 11.—(AP)—"He wasn't such a bad piano player at that."

Such was the Monday morning reaction, said Police Captain Andrew Barry, of Harold Rambert, 25, accused of shooting a jazz pianist to death in a north side night club yesterday because he didn't like the music.

The pianist was Francis Parker, 47. His brother, Murray, looked at the body last night and said:

"There was a man who was making $15,000 a year and who was reduced to playing piano in the back rooms of saloons." He said Francis once was a crack salesman for a fountain pen company.

Detectives Thomas Kelly and Thurman Stearns said they learned the pianist had played "Sweet Mystery of Life" while Rambert hummed the refrain and had walked over to the bar to get a drink as a reward.

The bartender served the drink, the detectives said, but Rambert interrupted with—

"Listen, buddy, I don't like you—or your music."

Then, Kelly and Stearns said witnesses related, Rambert snatched a revolver from the pocket of a companion—Walter Spasojevich—and shot Parker through the head. He looked down at the body and remarked: "Well, ain't that a hell of a thing to do—kill a man when he's having fun."

Rambert, a city street department chauffeur, was still in the saloon when the police arrived 25 minutes later. "I did it," they said he told them, "but I don't know why."

A Mine Of Information Revealing Congressmen Mr. Fullmer's 42 Lines Some Are Modest Men

By RODNEY DUTCHER
News-Star Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—The new Congressional Directory usually is considered worth a book review, since it's the Bible of Washington correspondents, social secretaries, lobbyists, and nearly everyone else who has to operate in the capital.

This is the volume which contains the biographies of members of congress, of the cabinet and the U. S. supreme court justices; names and home addresses of government officials and foreign diplomats, and lists of congressional committees.

It also contains the description of functions of all government agencies, from the presidency down to the Alley Dwelling Authority for the District of Columbia, and innumerable other items, which make it an inexhaustible mine of information about what some Washingtonians refer to as "the gumment."

As one skims through the self-supplied biographies of 435 members of the house, in addition to those of 96 senators, evidence accumulates that quite a few congressmen have been

PRESIDENT ACTS TO GET CHANGES IN GOVERNMENT

Efficiency Rather Than Economy Termed His Primary Goal

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—(AP)—President Roosevelt whipped together today the final details of his program to reorganize the federal government, with efficiency rather than economy the primary goal.

He will let congress decide after outlining his proposals in a message tomorrow, whether any federal activities should be abandoned or curtailed.

Mr. Roosevelt explained his ideas for re-grouping the manifold government agencies on a functional basis to Vice-President Garner, Speaker Bankhead and five other Democratic leaders at the White House late yesterday.

The cabinet's turn for an advance peek at the report of his special in-

Arrested For Killing Cashier Of States Nine Years Ago

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 11.—(AP)—John J. Grosch, chief of city detectives, announced today that he had arrested a man he named as Eugene Ricker, ex-convict, as the slayer of Douglas Acomb, 42, cashier of the New Orleans States, in a hold-up in front of the States building on Camp street nine years ago.

Grosch said Ricker had admitted to him that he was the man who pulled the trigger and implicated three men in the holdup conspiracy.

Those implicated were named by Grosch as Robert McGee, alias "Baby Horn," 29, now serving a penitentiary term; Sam Mason, 30, at present serving a 10 to 15 year term in the Louisiana penitentiary on a charge of breaking and entering and Frank [illegible], said to be a seaman now at sea.

Grosch said he broke into the alleged gang while sifting evidence in investigation of a string of hold-ups and slayings in New Orleans during the intervening years.

Acomb was held up just outside the door of the States building on October 3, 1927, shot down and robbed of a payroll amounting to about $[illegible]. His killers escaped and police have been searching for them ever since.

Grosch said Ricker was arrested Friday and that the accused slayer was pointed out to him by an associate of Ricker on a street corner.

He said one of the most important connecting links was the police [illegible]

Louisiana Adds Many New Names To High Income Tax Payers

Those Receiving Between $15,000 And $50,000 Nearly Three Times Number Last Year In Same Bracket

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—(AP)—Following is a list of salaries, bonus and other payments to employes of corporations in Louisiana for 1935. It was reported to congress by Secretary Morgenthau in accordance with the 1934 revenue act which called for the treasury to transmit to congress each year the list of all such payments of $15,000 or more. The following list contains the payments of $50,000 or less. Those above $50,000 were carried on the wires January 6.

The list is as follows:

A. W. McLellan, president, the [illegible], New Orleans, $18,000; Charles McLellan, vice-president, $25,[illegible].

Wedding Entourage Honored At Supper

Mr. And Mrs. Prioleau Ellis And Frank Breese Entertain O'Donnell-Seaman Party

White camellias, reminiscent of early spring in old southern gardens, formed the central decor for Mr. and Mrs. Prioleau Ellis' supper table in their home Sunday night when they entertained the O'Donnell-Seaman wedding entourage following rehearsal on the terrace of the Frances hotel. Mr. Frank Breese was co-host on this occasion.

Tall white tapers burned in the midst of the artistic plaque of waxen camellias and in handsome candelabra placed at the four corners of the table, covered with Italian cut work banquet cloth. Tapers in silver candelabra also burned on buffet and serving tables. Sprays of orange blossoms, gracing the silver serving tray, were significant of this prominent nuptial event.

Guests upon arrival were served aperitifs and canapes.

Miss O'Donnell, wearing one of her most beautiful trousseau models of shell pink satin with bouffant skirt bordered with satin a shade darker and short cocktail jacket of the same color, occupied the seat of honor with Mr. Seaman at her right. Others seated at the table with the guests of honor were: Mr. and Mrs. Ellis, Dr. and Mrs. R. W. O'Donnell, Mr. and Mrs. James Leake of Opelousas, Mrs. F. L. Seaman of New Orleans, Mr. Gaines Seaman of New Orleans, Mrs. K. W. Brown of Oklahoma City, Mrs. Edward Woolbright of New Orleans and Mr. Frank Breese.

Seated at small tables, beautifully appointed with silver and candlelit were: Miss Louise Morrison, Mrs. Dean Selig, Miss Doris Beaman, Miss Suzanne Hirsch, Mr. Morris Haas, Jr., Mr. Laurence Alexander, Mr. Turner Morgan and Mr. Edward Miazza of New Orleans.

Mrs. Jonas Selig, of this city, president of the Louisiana Federation of Temple Sisterhoods, announces plans for the national convention in New Orleans.

The national organization will hold its sessions Friday and Saturday and the first three days of next week. There are 359 member groups in the United States, Panama, Canada, England and South Africa, forming the world's largest organization of Jewish women. Three of the units are in New Orleans.

The state convention, over which Mrs. Selig will preside, will open at 10 a.m. Thursday in the Gold Room of The Roosevelt. Mrs. Nathaniel Share will offer the opening prayer and Rabbi Julian B. Feibelman of Temple Sinai will conduct a memorial service. A business session will follow, after which members of the state and national executive boards, registered delegates and official visitors will be entertained at luncheon at La Louisiane. The three New Orleans sisterhoods, those of Touro Synagogue, Gates of Prayer and Temple Sinai, will be hostesses for the luncheon. Mrs. Morris Barnett of New Orleans, a member of the national executive board, will be toastmistress. Mrs. Nathan Meyer of New Iberia will give the opening prayer.

The afternoon session will be held at La Louisiane.

Officers of the state federation in addition to Mrs. Selig are Mrs. Ernest Charles Samuel, New Orleans, first vice-president; Mrs. Conrad Bauer, Alexandria, second vice-president; Mrs. Victor Levy, Lafayette, third vice-president; Mrs. Rene Salomon, New Orleans, secretary, and Mrs. Sam Kurtz, Opelousas, treasurer.

Mrs. Samuel is vice-chairman of the general committee for the three-fold national meeting, of which J. D. Dresner is chairman. The three groups that will meet January 15 through 19 are the Union of American Hebrew congregations, for which this will be the 35th meeting; the National Federation of Temple Sisterhoods, for which it will be the 12th biennial, and the National Federation of Temple Brotherhoods, for which it will be the seventh biennial. The sisterhood and the brotherhood are units of the Union of American Hebrew congregations.

Sisterhood discussions will center about the topic "Educating Through Sisterhoods for the Modern World."

There will be a peace exhibit prepared by Mrs. Ralph Wertheimer of Chicago, Ill., chairman of the national committee on peace.

Among those attending the convention will be Mrs. Abram Simon of Washington, who organized the National Federation of Temple Sisterhoods in 1913.

The federation has built and maintains the dormitories of the Hebrew Union college in Cincinnati, grants scholarships to students of the college, spreads programs of religious education, maintains the department of youth activities of the Union of Hebrew Congregations, contributes money for the publication of Jewish religious textbooks and takes a leading part in sponsoring the Jewish Braille institute in New York.

Social features of the sisterhood meeting will include a buffet luncheon Saturday for which officers, including Mrs. Selig, and the executive board of the New Orleans section of the National Council of Jewish Women will be hostesses to the officers and the executive board of the National Federation of Temple Sisterhoods.

Mrs. Edward Pilsbury, General Federation of Women's clubs director for Louisiana, and Mrs. Ralph H. Agate of Lafayette, president of the Louisiana Federation of Women's clubs, will be among those attending the annual midwinter meeting of the board of directors of the general federation in Washington Wednesday through Saturday.

Mrs. Eugene M. Lawson of Tulsa, Okla., the president, will preside, assisted by the two vice-presidents, Mrs. Sadie Orr Dunbar of Portland, Ore., and Mrs. Walter W. Seymour of Chicago, Ill.

area composed of western Pennsylvania, eastern Ohio and West Virginia. Lowlands were flooded and water poured into cellars of business establishments on the river front.

The Stony Creek river at Johnstown, Pa., came within a foot of flood stage yesterday, causing renewed anxiety to the city wrecked by floods last spring. A stage of more than 20 feet, with the flood level 25 feet high was reached in Pittsburgh at the confluence of the Allegheny and Monongahela rivers.

Northern West Virginia streams went over their banks but no damage was reported.

The Ohio river rose along a 600 mile front, nearing 41 feet at Cincinnati, and expected to reach 45, only five feet short of the flood mark. Rains blocked many southern Ohio roads. At Falmouth, Ky., the river rose to within three feet of flood stage.

Many middlewestern cities reported temperature minimums below zero yesterday. They included: Moorhead, Minn., -12; LaCrosse, Wis., -18; Devils Lake, N. D., and Sioux City, Ia., -16; Duluth, Minn., and Huron, S. D., -14; Omaha, Neb., -12.

SUMMER WEATHER LEAVES SOUTHEAST

(By Associated Press)

Summer-like temperatures vanished from the southeast today but a cold wave that caused suffering from Texas to Canada seemed to have lost much of its force in a ragged advance from the west.

Readings in the 50's and 60's in northern Mississippi sloughed off 20-30 points in a few hours early Sunday and midnight found temperatures ranging in the low 30's.

In Arkansas one death was charged to the weather when John Buchanan, 18, of Arkoma, Okla., was killed when his automobile skidded on icy pavement and struck a pole.

New Orleans and southern Louisiana and Mississippi escaped most of the cold. The midnight reading at New Orleans was a comfortable 54.

Nashville reported 32 at the same hour with continued cold and fair seen for today. Knoxville's Sunday high of 68 plummetted to a comparatively frigid 40 early today to the accompaniment of light rain.

Atlanta's near record 76 had been pushed down only to 61 early today but a possible minimum of 40 was seen. Montgomery's balmy 78 was reduced only to the low 60's. Jacksonville's Sunday 80 slipped to 62 but Miami's normal 78 ranged down only to 72.

Forecasts for today generally were for slightly colder temperatures with less rain.

VAST TEXAS AREAS HELD IN ICY GRIP

DALLAS, Tex., Jan. 11.—(AP)—Vast areas of north, south and east Texas continued today in the grip of an ice storm which disrupted communication lines, interfered with highway travel and slowed train schedules. Nearly a dozen towns were without electric power after one of the most severe blizzards in recent years.

Many inquiries from highway accidents and falls on slippery ground were reported but the death toll remained at five.

East and south Texas, the last areas to bear the brunt of the storm which swept into the state via the Panhandle six days ago, virtually were paralyzed by a thick coat of ice resulting from sleet and a drizzling rain.

No estimate of the damage was available, but the loss to communication and power lines alone was expected to exceed $1,000,000.

Towns reported without power were Lampasas, Llano, Paris, Clarksville, Bonham, Ladonia, Petty, Blooming Grove, Richland, Streetman and Kerens.

Because of the power failure at Paris, the Paris News was printed in the plant of the Sherman Democrat.

At Tyler the Morning Telegraph received its news dispatches via short wave radio from Dallas. Telephone calls from Longview to Dallas were routed through St. Louis.

The citrus crop in the lower Rio Grande valley was believed to have escaped damage when a light rain fell, making it unnecessary to use smudge pots.

The vegetable crop in the Laredo section also was reported to have escaped unhurt.

MURDER TONIGHT

BY LAURENCE W. MEYNELL

SYNOPSIS: Inspector Hylton is imprisoned in Nancy Featherstone's house. Sergeant White takes a walk. Nancy thinks Hylton is about to arrest Dale Shipley, the man she loves, for the murder of his uncle, old Arthur Burdett—and she is correct. White has something on his mind. He has more when he sees his wife in the arms of another man, deep in Nyeton wood. Now White has told his wife what he saw; she has hinted that perhaps White knows something about the Burdett case he has not told.

Chapter 33

HYLTON

"FOR God's sake, Jimmy," the woman shouted, "act sensibly. It's got to be give and take between us now. If you forget about this I'll forget anything I know about Monday night and—"

The man stopped her with a snarl.

"Do you think I'd let you interfere with my life now?" he said. He stood up and the scraping of his chair legs on the stone floor was the only sound in that small room until the woman broke the silence with a little sob of fear and called out.

"Put that knife down. If you come a step towards me I'll scream. I swear I will."

James White's hand closed more tightly round the knife handle, "You won't scream for long," he assured her and he began to move.

He was stopped by an urgent knocking on the back door and a cheerful voice calling out, "Hallo, I say—anybody there?"

White stopped and was amazed to find himself trembling suddenly; then after a long reluctant look at the terrified woman, he very carefully placed the bread knife on the table and crossing the room opened the door.

"Good evening, Inspector," he said woodenly.

NANCY FEATHERSTONE did not leave her house all day long. No tradesmen called (she had put them all off by telephone); her groom would not be back until six, and Annie not until after eight; she was completely alone with her thoughts—and her prisoner in the old strong room upstairs.

Her thoughts were not particularly pleasant ones. She was a million miles from regretting her amazing action of the morning, but more sober reflection was making her realize that she could not keep the game up for many more hours.

At four o'clock she walked into the kitchen to set about making herself some tea, and she had hardly put the kettle on when she was startled by the ringing of the front door bell. A caller? It was possible, though she could not think of anyone, except the Rector, who would be at all likely to call.

She thought at first of simply lying doggo and of letting whoever it might be get tired of ringing and go away; but on second thoughts she decided it might be unwise to do that.

The bell sounded again, somewhat impatiently, and she left the kitchen and made her way to the front door turning over in her mind various methods of getting rid of the Rev. Mr. Steeble.

She opened the front door and stood in amazement. Dale Shipley, aggressively cheerful, stood on the doorstep.

"Hallo Nancy," he cried breezily, "I just looked round to say I can manage tonight after all, if it still suits you."

Complete silence followed, and even to Dale's egocentric eye it became evident that something was amiss.

"What's up?" he asked. "You look scared out of your wits."

Nancy found her tongue. "In God's name what have you come back for?" she said in a whisper. "They're after you."

Shipley looked at her as though he thought she was mad.

"Who's after me?" he asked at last.

"The police—the Inspector."

"The Inspector chap, what on earth for?"

"For Arthur Burdett. For murdering him."

Dale Shipley stared at her in comic astonishment, then he put back his head and laughed loud and long; he was feeling in high good humor and this totally unexpected jest was a rare titbit to end up the day with.

"Well he's making a damn fool of himself," he said, still laughing, "because I didn't murder Arthur Burdett any more than you did."

"I—" she took a deep breath, "I—I thought you might have."

"Of course I might, and so might anybody else in the village if it comes to that. But why pick on me? I can't imagine what gets hold of you women sometimes. Anyway, I'm not too late for a cup of tea, am I?"

Nancy stepped back from the door and made him welcome. "No, you're not too late for tea, Dale," she said, "I'm just making it."

"Annie out?" he asked, stepping inside.

"Yes, Annie's out."

"Didn't you hunt today?"

They were both in the drawing room now and suddenly she laid a quick hand on his shoulder and said "Dale, what about that note, what did that mean?"

"I—I had to go up to Town on some business. I thought I was in a bit of a hole, but as it turned out I wasn't. You can forget that note, Nancy."

THERE was something about his answer and the manner of it that was unsatisfactory to her. She tightened her grip on his shoulder and made him face her.

"Dale," she said slowly, "for God's sake tell me the truth. Did writing that note have anything to do with—Arthur Burdett?"

"With Arthur Burdett? how the hell should it?"

"You didn't run away because, because you killed him?"

"You must be going batty, Nancy. I had no more to do with killing Arthur Burdett than the man in the moon."

She had to believe him, and yet she was still not quite satisfied.

"The Inspector thinks you did it—he's after you—"

"After me?"

"Yes, for heavens sake Dale don't play the fool about this, if you had anything to do with it you're in danger, now, here."

"Look here Nancy," he said soberly "I swear I had no more to do with killing Arthur Burdett than your grey hunter had; and what's more, nobody can possibly tie me up in it in any way. What's the matter?"

Nancy had subsided into a chair and was shaking with silent laughter—laughter, though Dale couldn't know it, which was the outcome of six hours of nervous tension.

"What the deuce is the game, Nancy?" he asked irritably, "is it some sort of a joke, or something?"

Nancy ended up her spasm somewhere between a sob and a hysterical hiccup.

"Yes—in a way it is," she said. "If you sit here I'll go and get the tea."

Dale grunted.

When Nancy left the drawing room it was not the preparations for tea that claimed her attention. The fact of Dale's return and above all his manner had convinced her that he was speaking the truth. She had made a colassal bloomer, and being in many ways a simple, direct person it seemed to her that the best thing was to go and put it right as far as she could straight away. Accordingly she went straight upstairs.

"I'm afraid I've made rather a mistake Mr. Hylton," were her first words as she unlocked the strong room door.

"You have, believe me," was Hylton's cold reply. The Inspector was bored to the verge of desperation, chattering with cold and ravenously hungry.

"I should think you have made a mistake, young lady," he said viciously, "as soon as ever I can get in touch with White you'll be arrested for being an accessory after the fact."

"Yes, I daresay. By the way Mr. Shipley's downstairs, I thought you'd like to know."

Hylton stared at this extraordinary woman.

"What do you mean, he's downstairs?" he asked suspiciously, "What's the game now?"

"Mr. Hylton I'm frightfully sorry. I can't expect you to believe that, of course, but I really am. You'll never realize why I had to—to keep you here, but that doesn't matter. What does matter is that Dale Shipley's here and, Inspector, he didn't do it."

"Didn't he?" Hylton asked grimly "we'll give him a chance to tell us all about that at the station. Where is he?"

Nancy was overcome with a flood of misgivings as she silently led the way back to the drawing room.

"Just a minute," Hylton said quietly, "I think I'll go first." He plucked Nancy by the arm and she stood on one side to let him pass. He turned the handle and pushed the door open but did not immediately go in. He had allowed himself to be made a fool of once that day and did not propose to repeat the experiment.

However the only thing that happened when the door swung inwards was that an aggrieved voice called out in a typically Dale Shipley-ish manner, "What about that tea Nancy?"

COATS TAKEN FROM CHURCH VESTIBULE

A "meanest thief" stole two overcoats from the vestibule of the Monroe First Baptist church during the Sunday night sermon hour.

The theft was reported to police following the service by the pastor, Rev. L. T. Hastings.

Another overcoat was stolen here Sunday night from a parked car. Fred D. Floyd of Bastrop told police that while he was attending a moving picture theater a thief pried open a window of his car, which was parked downtown on South Grand street, and stole an overcoat and sweater.

ing that the same revolver that was used in the later slaying of Charles Rabito, grocery clerk, in a lure payroll murder, was used in the killing of Acomb.

Rabito was taken out into Jefferson parish, tortured and shot to death. George Dallao and John Capaci were hanged for that murder.

Today, Grosch said, Ricker "broke" and proposed to tell him about the Acomb murder if arrangements could be made to spare his life.

Grosch said he told Ricker that he would agree to such a proposition providing the story bore sufficient weight and then Ricker admitted the actual shooting, the officer said, and implicated the three other men.

Grosch said he would ask the district attorney to delay Ricker's trial until he had an opportunity to testify against the other men and that he would ask for a life sentence for Ricker.

Ricker was quoted by Grosch as saying Bobby Horn was the brains of the holdup and asked the others to join in as he said there was a chance to get $15,000 or $20,000 from the payroll.

He was quoted as saying he had borrowed Dallao's pistol the night before and that he and the others agreed on the hold-up plans.

Ricker was quoted as saying that a negro chauffeur drove Mr. Acomb from the bank to the States building with the payroll and that as Acomb started to get out of the car he ran in front of Acomb, pointed the revolver at him and grabbed the cashier's satchel.

Burrell Townsend, the chauffeur, had told police that Acomb made no resistance, but Ricker today declared that Acomb "made a grab for my revolver" and said the weapon was discharged in the scuffle.

Ricker said the gang scattered after the holdup and that he received $2,200 as his share of the loot.

The bullet which killed Acomb entered his left side and splintered a bone. Acomb ran into the lobby of the States building and collapsed.

The shooting occurred about ten a.m. and Acomb died later.

The robbery was staged with the aid of a stolen automobile.

NATIONS MOVE

indicated they were aware of the dangers of German incursion. They said it was now up to Franco to see that "new" German contingents do not land there and that those Nazi "volunteers" now in the Spanish zone get out.

Otherwise, French armed occupation of Spanish Morocco may be the answer. The French general staff was reported at work already on such a contingency.

High British naval men conferred at Gibraltar and London while dozens of British and French warships moved toward western Mediterranean waters.

France massed her colonials in ceremonial drill in her own Moroccan zone—showing her strength to act, if need be. She has 100,000 men there, with more available.

The French consul at Tetuan, Spanish Morocco, received the Spanish Moroccan denial that regular Nazi troops had reached that zone or that they were "expected."

Into this denial, French officials read the indications that Spanish Moroccan authorities themselves were fearful of the consequences of German incursion.

Both French and British official sources insisted there was German "activity" in the zone—the extent of which remained to be confirmed.

In mainland Spain, Madrid evacuated her noncombatant population while booming cannonades covered preparations for a new insurgent onslaught and a new Socialist government defense.

Spanish insurgent authorities countered a British protest to the air bombings of the British embassy with the charge that government, not insurgent, planes had made the attack.

ROAD BUILDERS OF NATION AT ORLEANS

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 11.—(AP)—Road builders from every section of the nation gathered here today for their annual parley to discuss ways and means of constructing better and safer highways.

More than 8,000 persons interested in the many phases of highway construction were expected to attend the American Road Builders' association's opening session, including a large delegation from Mexico.

Willard T. Chevalier of New York, the association's president, will preside and deliver the initial address. Others who will be heard at the opening session are Thomas H. Cutler, Frankfort, Ky., president of the American Association of State Highway Officials; Thomas H. MacDonald, Washington, chief of the bureau of public roads; Raymond H. Coombs, Churchville, N. Y., president of the National Rural Letter Carriers' association, and Roy F. Britton, Washington, director of the national highway users' conference.

TUBERCULOSIS GROUP WILL HOLD MEETING

The annual meeting of the Ouachita Tuberculosis and Public Health association will be held in its offices in the old Central Savings Bank and Trust company Tuesday at 3 p.m.

At the meeting 14 members of the board of directors will be elected, officers chosen, and members of various committees named.

Special interest attaches to the work of this group this year as the large modern tuberculosis sanatorium at Pine Top will be opened for the reception of patients in the near future.

All members are urged by the president, Captain G. B. Cooley, to attend the annual meeting.

LOG ROLLING PLANS MADE

Big District Event Proposed At Jonesboro January 24

Assembly and registration of members who will participate in the Northeast Louisiana Log Rolling association's program will be held at the Jonesboro High school January 24.

A parade will form at the high school and will proceed to the fair grounds at 10 a.m., when there will be a field drill by the uniform rank from the Shreveport camp, a log rolling and field meet.

At the noon hour, a barbecue will be held at the fair ground and there will be several addresses delivered.

The afternoon program will comprise a general assembly at the high school auditorium. A class of approximately 100 candidates from the various camps in the district will be initiated, the protection degree being given.

The camp which will be host for the April log rolling will be named.

The protection degree will be exemplified by the officers and teams from Shreveport and Monroe camps.

There will be large delegations from Bastrop, Winnsboro and Monroe, as well as representatives from Oak Grove, Farmerville, Marion, Clarks, Olla and other camps in the association. Invitations have been extended to camps in Shreveport, De Ridder, Natchitoches, and all head camp officers. Indications are that there will be from 500 to 700 Woodmen in Jonesboro for the big meeting.

Officers and the degree team from the Monroe Woodmen of the World camp are going to Bastrop Wednesday night to aid in the installation of officers of the camp there and to initiate a class of 20 candidates.

The Bastrop camp meets in the American Legion home on Bayou Bartholomew.

At the regular meeting night of the Monroe camp, Tuesday at 7:30 p.m., a class will be introduced into the mysteries of Woodcraft. The protection degree will be exemplified by Company E, of the Twelfth regiment of the uniformed rank.

CENTER STUDENTS TO GIVE STUNTS

A stunt program will be presented by the Men's Glee club at Northeast Center of Louisiana State university Wednesday at activity period. Dallas Goss, head of the voice department at the Center, will act as sponsor.

A similar event was held last year by the Library club and a highly original and enjoyable program was presented. A silver loving cup was awarded to the group putting on the most successful stunt. The same plan will be followed again this time, it is announced.

The students take deep interest in these stunt programs and are said to be preparing for one that will far outclass that given a year ago.

It is planned to give similar programs each year as an annual event.

NO CHARGES FILED IN TRAFFIC DEATH

Following an investigation by Dr. Irving J. Wolff, coroner, and peace officers, no charges had been filed Monday as a result of the death of James Elvis Adams, 14-year-old negro boy, who was almost instantly killed late Saturday night when a bicycle he was riding was in a collision with an automobile driven by Wiley R. Harrell, 1008 Jackson street, at the intersection of Jackson and Mulberry streets.

Concerning a picture which was taken of the boy's body as it lay in the street after the accident, Dr. Wolff said Monday that the picture was not taken through orders from him. The coroner said he made this statement to correct any impressions which might arise.

The photographer who made the picture did so upon his own initiative.

CITY FIRE LOSS FOR YEAR GIVEN

Damage Of $40,962.25 Shown In Annual Report Of Inspector

Monroe's fire loss for 1936 was $40,962.25, comparing favorably with the 1935 fire loss of $30,600, one of the lowest fire records of the city for 21 years, it was shown Monday in the annual report of L. J. Hunnicutt, inspector of the Monroe fire department.

Approximately 80 per cent of the property destroyed by fire here during 1936 was insured. This portion of the destroyed property was valued at $37,927.

The total value of the properties where fires occurred, value of the contents, insurance and other details were listed by the inspector as follows: Value of buildings, $953,485, contents, $245,250, total value, $1,198,735; building insurance, $761,028, insurance on contents, $174,300, total insurance, $935,328; building insurance loss, $28,612, insurance loss on contents, $9,314.96, total insurance loss, $37,927.25; insured and uninsured building loss, $29,202.29, insured and uninsured contents loss, $11,759.96, total insured and uninsured loss, $40,962.25; loss where fire originated, $39,597.51; exposure losses, $1,364.

The fire department was called to 424 fires during the year, and made 137 other runs, principally miscellaneous service calls, but including a few false alarms. Sixty of the year's runs were made to out-of-town points.

Two major out-of-town fires to which Monroe firemen were called during the year were the fire which destroyed the Louisiana Tech administration building at Ruston and the fire which badly damaged the Chicago Mill and Lumber company's plant at Tallulah.

Fires confined to the place of origin totaled 398. Fifteen fires extended to adjoining buildings, and 11 extended beyond adjoining buildings.

There were approximately 6,949 buildings in the city in 1936, and they were classified in the report as follows: Reinforced concrete, 19; steel frame, 11; brick, stone and tile, 307; iron clad, 120; frame, 6,465; concrete blocks, 6, brick veneer, 21.

The building fires of the year were listed as follows: reinforced concrete, 0; fire proof buildings, 0; brick or stone, 12; iron clad, 1; frame, 101; concrete blocks, 0; buildings not classified, 1.

Details of the inspector's work were listed as follows: Number of state papers issued, 6; city papers issued, 1; verbal orders issued, 28; re-inspections, 19; inspections, 5,046; gas lights ordered out, 3; electrical defects reported to electrical inspector, 9, supervised fire drills in schools, 88; sprinkler systems inspected, 26; fire escapes inspected, 10; fire escape repairs ordered, 1.

CLUB SPONSORS FARM PROJECT

Growing Of Tomatoes For Market To Be Discussed Thursday

The West Monroe Kiwanis club, which plans to sponsor a tomato-growing project among the farmers of Ouachita parish the coming spring, has called a meeting to be held in the courtroom of the West Monroe city hall Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock, it was announced Monday by W. R. Hatchell, president of the club.

All farmers who will be interested in plans for growing tomatoes as a cash crop are invited to attend the meeting, which will be addressed by H. O. Tacket, agricultural representative of the Illinois Central railroad, which has consented to cooperate in furthering the project.

"The Kiwanis club's purpose," Mr. Hatchell said, "is to enlist 100 to 150 farmers, each of whom would be willing to plant one acre of land to the growing of tomatoes. The project would be experimental and educational; hence, it is not desirable to undertake too extensive a program the first year. If the plans prove successful, larger tracts could be developed in succeeding years."

At the meeting Thursday afternoon full details of the project will be explained, the kind of tomatoes that should be planted to produce best results from Ouachita parish soil, as well as methods of planting and fertilizing.

An immediate cash market is promised to farmers who participate. If a sufficient number of farmers agree to cooperate so that a yield of three or four cars a day would be available for shipment during the season, buyers would be brought to West Monroe and purchase the tomatoes on the loading platforms in that city. No shipments would be made to middlemen, but each farmer's offerings would be paid for on delivery to the cars in West Monroe.

Similar plans have been followed for several seasons in the recent past by farmers in the neighborhood of Chatham, Eros and Hodge, and have proved highly successful, it was stated Monday by Kiwanis club officials. The agricultural committee of the club will have direct charge of the project, which is one of the activities espoused by the group for the year.

PHONE COMPANY HAS GOOD YEAR

Net Gain Of 433 Patrons Shown; Employes Now Number 110

The year 1936 ended satisfactorily for the Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph company in Monroe, stated J. W. Warren, group manager, Monday. Telephones installed during the year showed a net gain of 433 over the installations for 1935.

The year ended with a total of 6,146 telephones in use here against a total of 5,713 telephones that were in use when the year 1935 ended.

Mr. Warren stated that the year 1936 was by far in all respects the best that the company has experienced since 1929 and he anticipates that by June, 1937, there will be as many phones in use here as was the case at the peak of business in 1929, when there were 6,430 telephone users in Monroe and West Monroe.

At the very lowest period of business since 1929, the number of phones shrank to 5,017.

Extensive plans for reconstruction work are contemplated during 1937, Mr. Warren said. Last year, much of the cable on the north side was rebuilt. During 1937, cable construction on the south side will comprise the major part of construction work.

The company now employs in Monroe a total of 110 employes. Pay of the staff is now virtually equal to that received in 1929, Mr. Warren stated.

FRANCES PERKINS' DAUGHTER WORKING IN FIRST POSITION

WASHINGTON, Jan. 11—(AP)—Susanna Wilson, petite daughter of Secretary Frances Perkins, has obtained her first job. She is working in an art gallery—learning the business without a salary.

The slim, 20-year-old girl, who quit Bryn Mawr after two years because it seemed "pointless" to continue, now hangs pictures, sells prints and helps prepare refreshments for studio parties.

"Of course I don't get anything for it," explained the blue-eyed daughter of the labor secretary and Paul Wilson of New York, as she received guests at the gallery today.

"I don't know enough yet to be of any value. It's mostly social."

"I just didn't like it," she said of college. "The school was fine. If I'd planned to be a doctor or a lawyer, I would have gone on, but I didn't."

She isn't engaged, she's not planning a debut, and she doesn't go out more than three nights a week.

"I tried it at first, but I was exhausted," she said. "That's why I like Washington. You live such a planned life and if I want to be hectic I can go to New York for a week-end."

A Scrubwoman's Testimonial

Cameron Beck, director of the New York stock exchange, recently told a story that points a highly interesting moral. Several years ago a scrubwoman outside his office said to him: "Good evening, Mr. Beck; tell me, please, the name of the young man who has just left your office."

Half expecting a complaint, he said: "That is Jimmy Blaine. Why, what has he done?"

"Done? It's nothin' he's done, sir; I just want to say that he's the finest young gentleman that's been around here all the sixteen years I've been on the job, and I've seen 'em come and go, hundreds and hundreds."

Mr. Beck retraced his steps to his office and wrote on the personnel card of Jimmy Blaine: "Scrubwoman called this boy a gentleman."

Three months later a member of the stock exchange said, "Mr. Beck, what page wears the badge No. 118?"

"That is Jimmy Blaine. Why do you ask?"

"Yesterday I saw one of our uniformed boys step up to a woman just down the street. She seemed confused. He listened to her difficulties, led her into a near-at-hand building, asked several questions of the elevator starter, saw her difficulties dissolved—and a smile replace her expression of confusion. Then he excused himself and went on about his business. His uniform had the number 118."

Mr. Beck made another entry on the card.

Some time later this page came to Mr. Beck's office and said: "I have been offered a job in the stock exchange office of Mr. So-and-So (and he named the member who had reported the incident of the confused lady). Shall I take the job?"

Mr. Beck put his hand on the boy's shoulder. "Get over to his office as you can. That's the opportunity you have been waiting for."

Recently So-and-So said: "Mr. Beck, you remember Jimmy Blaine?"

"Very well, indeed."

"He is headed for a partnership in my firm."

The story of Jimmy Blaine is that of a boy who was part of the world, instead of apart from the world. Jimmy Blaine had the fortunate faculty—cheap to cultivate but priceless to possess—of wanting to serve and help others—all others. It may not have occurred to many people that this same homey, homely quality which endears a boy to people in a small community helps and aids him in downtown New York—or anywhere else.

Price Of Liquidation

It is by no means strange that difficulties should be encountered in connection with the process of liquidating relief. People who have long been the recipients of what, in many instances, amount to public pensions naturally resent an attempt at gradual demobilization.

There have been threats as to a march on Washington comparable to that staged by war veterans in behalf of the soldiers' bonus. And it is certainly to be hoped that congress will not be swayed by any such resort to direct or indirect pressure.

With reemployment spreading in private industry and with many of the states and municipalities in an improved financial position permitting local assumption of emergency burdens, there is much reason why official Washington should start deflating the federal relief structure as one primary means of heading toward a balanced budget.

Sooner or later, this process must be carried to fulfillment, and, what with the menace of markedly increased federal taxation resulting from years of spending in excess of available income, the moment would seem opportune for a steady resumption of solvency notwithstanding the protests of those who would like to see governmental handouts continued indefinitely.

Pershing Rides The Desert

All Americans will find a measure of pleasure and satisfaction in a brief news report from Tucson, Ariz., where the air is clear and the sun shines brightly throughout the year, even in mid-winter.

It tells an interested public that General John J. Pershing, feeling as "fit as a king" at seventy-six, is riding daily on the desert where, half a century ago as a young lieutenant of cavalry, he campaigned against troublesome Indians and laid the basis of a brilliant military career.

It is a pleasure for Americans to learn that this distinguished soldier, whose prestige has grown in the years of peace, still loves to gallop around on a horse and is physically capable of doing so at his advanced age.

Sensible Step

The vice president may be a man of small influence in our government, but John N. Garner seems to have asserted himself on one point, at least. He has abolished the custom of the vice president's dinner party.

Under this custom, the vice president each January threw a dinner party for the president. A little later, by way of return, the president threw one for the vice president. These affairs, needless to say, were always extremely soup-and-fish. They were landmarks in the Washington social season—although beyond that they served no particularly useful purpose.

Now Mr. Garner has announced that the dinners are off, and President Roosevelt seconds the motion. Mr. Garner's habit of retiring at 9 p.m. can go on as before; Mr. Roosevelt is spared one more demand on his time and energy. All in all, it looks like a step in the direction of sanity.

Railroads have made great progress lately with streamlining, electrification and air cooling, but a day-coach window still retains its rugged individualism.

At last the failure can feel superior. He is the only one who isn't regarded as an enemy of man.

Breaking a sacred pledge horrifies all nice Americans unless it is a pledge to love, honor and cherish.

Uncommon Sense

By JOHN BLAKE

INTRODUCING THE WORLD

Last evening while I listened to the radio, I heard the announcer say: "We now take you to England. The next voice you hear will be that of our announcer in London."

The broadcast continued from London without a hitch, with scarcely a perceptible difference in volume or clarity. It was just another of the many routine foreign broadcasts that are increasing in radio transmission.

I couldn't help being impressed. I still get excited when vast distance is conquered in an instant. A friend of mine who was listening, noticed my expression. He remarked:

"I get a kick out of that, too. All I have to do is think twenty years back and I get a still bigger kick. How radio has changed in that time! And how it is going to change the world in time to come!"

I asked him what he meant.

"Why, radio is bringing the whole world nearer the truth," he said. "The day of the propagandist who can lead a whole nation by the nose is on the way out. People listen to the radio. And people are finding out what's going on in the world more than they ever have before.

"Television will do a lot that way, too. I should guess, that when that is perfected the day won't be so far distant when the world really is united.

"Right now everyone is worrying about the possibility of another great war. Science, they claim, will make it the most horrible ever. And yet, I bet, that it will be science that will take away war, and restore peace to the world. Inventions like the radio and television will introduce the peoples of the world to one another

"Knowledge will take away hatred and distrust that nations have for one another. There may still be men who want to dictate. But they won't get anyone to follow them when the whole world is properly introduced. We'll all discover that we can live together in peace."

My friend's prediction may take a longer time to come true than he thinks. But I think it is on the way.

Ignorance and prejudice have always been the things that made war possible. You can't get a whole nation of young men to enlist in an army to fight and kill a nation they believe to be right. You have to sell them the idea that they are being menaced, or that their opponents are monsters to be exterminated.

When radio and television properly introduce the whole world, we'll undoubtedly find out that, race or color, we're all human beings pretty much alike.

When that happens we can have peace.

WHAT WILL PEOPLE SAY?

(Those who know do not speak;
Those who speak do not know."
—Lao-tse, Chinese sage.)

What will people say? you ask.
Let no fear of talk
Turn the current of your way
As you run or walk.

Does it matter what they say?
Say, always, they will;
Please yourself and not the world,
Let your dreaming fill

All your mind. Your purpose clear,
Go your way and do
What you think is right; your own
Golden Rule pursue.

People, those who count the most,
Do not talk; to those
Who spill out in foolish words
No sure credence goes.

NOT ALL OVER

"Now that the holidays are over, let's start saving."

"Yes; we must pay for the presents some time."

EXACT COUNT

"How many in your family now, Emily?"

"Six, I think. Me and twins."

PASSING THE BUCK

Wife—I don't believe you smoked one of those cigars I gave you on Christmas.

Henry—You're right, dear, I'm going to keep them until Willie wants to learn to smoke. They'll cure him.

AGREED

"I don't suppose you'd let me have $10?"

"I don't suppose so, either."

SAD NEWS

Little Jimmy—"Mamma don't you think daddy is a little heavy for the butcher to carry around?"

His Mother—"The butcher to carry around? What do you mean?"

Little Jimmy—"Well, I heard the butcher say he couldn't carry daddy any longer."

OH, I SAY!

Visitor—"Want the nice big man to get you a jinky water?"

The Professor's Child—"If you mean do I wish to relieve my thirst with a quantity of H2O—no, I've just had some."

OR WORSE

Smythe—"Would you mind paying me that ten dollars? You borrowed it from me one night when you were —well—intoxicated. Don't you remember?"

Watkins—"No, but if you let me have the ten you must have been in the same condition."

Up to now about every criticism has been directed at the G-men except that they permit the public enemies to get away from them, which, after all, is what really matters.

Japan, Italy and Germany are good Liberals. They also wish to soak people who have more than they have.

In a village it is narrowminded gossip; in a great metropolis it is first-page news.

Still, if you never break the law, you will have no reason to believe that cops can be bribed.

They Call It Politics

By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON—Win, lose or draw, the C. I. O. war with General Motors is giving considerable distress to those optimists among President Roosevelt's advisers who had counted on magnificent increases in federal tax revenues as a result of improved business conditions.

It is working as a two-edged sword, lopping off corporation earnings, not only of the motor companies, but of every company that sells things to everybody affected, and also boosting the unemployment relief expenditures that the government will make.

Estimates of 200,000 men out of work in the near future, made by the representatives of the motor companies here, are regarded as very conservative. It is not only the men actually working in the motor plants, nor even those employed in factories making parts, plate glass, etc. The attempt by C. I. O. to cut off the supplies of the automobile manufacturers is hitting a number of other industries.

For instance, it is hitting building construction by cutting down the supply of plate glass, the chief object of which was to hamstring the motor makers. Henry Ford is reported to be about to use laminated window glass, so real is the shortage of the glass normally used. This particular hamstring, of course, hits not only General Motors, at which it was aimed, but all the other auto manufacturers as well.

In appraising the effect on the federal treasury it is necessary to remember that any loss is skimmed off the top—takes the cream. This is peculiarly true of federal income taxes. If the big motor companies, the big steel companies, and others affected should have considerably smaller earnings for 1937 than the government is anticipating in the president's budget message, a very heavy portion of the reduction will come off large incomes. This means incomes paying taxes in the higher brackets, some of them reaching into the more than 60 per cent tax class.

So that actually, on a part of the loss to all these big corporations, the government is actually taking more than half of the loss of profits—considerably more than half, if one reflects that before the dividends are paid out the government takes 15 per cent of the net earnings of the corporations. This 15 per cent loss of revenue will apply to all corporation losses of earnings due to strikes, tie-ups or whatnot.

But it is on the individual incomes that the loss will be highest. Due to the new tax on undistributed earnings, corporations, as evidenced last month are making every effort to pay out all net earnings to stockholders. So that after taking 15 per cent of the net loss due to the strikes, the government will then lose a big slice of tax revenue from the individual stockholders. Some of the percentages of course will be fairly low, but nearly all security holders, with few exceptions, pay income taxes, and every dollar lost through the strike will come out of the highest brackets that particular taxpayer reaches. It will come off the top.

When 200,000 well paid men—for most of the men affected by this strike were earning way above the average paid labor throughout the country—stop buying anything but necessities, the earnings of a great many corporations not affected directly by the tie-up will be cut. Washington observers do not attempt to belittle the skimming the cream idea, for it works to the detriment of the treasury in every possible change of earnings. And the treasury was counting heavily on improved business conditions to boost taxpayers into higher bracket classes.

LOCAL POSTOFFICE SHOWS GOOD GAINS

The Monroe postoffice showed a gain in volume of business transacted during December, 1936, of 13 per cent over similar business during December, 1935.

The entire year 1936 showed a gain over 1935 of 12 per cent in volume of business, according to Postmaster J. R. Wooten. Within a few days, figures will be ready for publication showing in greater detail the gains made in the past year, it was stated.

A number of changes will be made for the new year and some men added to the staff. These also will be ready for announcement shortly, it was promised.

15 Years Ago

Jan. 11, 1922.

Officers for the ensuing year were elected at the semi-annual meeting of the fifth congressional district medical society in the council chambers of the city hall yesterday. Dr. B. M. McKoin, of Mer Rouge, will head the organization as president, succeeding Dr. F. C. Bennett, of Monroe, who filled the position the past year. Other officers elected are: Vice-president, Dr. J. E. Walsworth; secretary-treasurer, Dr. C. H. Moseley.

The machine shop, machinery, engine room and tin department of the Sterling Carbon company of Sterlington, 17 miles north of Monroe, were destroyed by fire of undetermined origin last night at 7 p.m. The loss is estimated roughly at $20,000.

S. S. Hunter, of Shreveport, pioneer oil and gas operator of North Louisiana and Arkansas, was elected president of the Ouachita Natural Gas and Oil company of Monroe at a meeting of the directors yesterday. Other officers named are: Vice-president, S. D. Hunter; secretary-treasurer, E. N. Florsheim. The stockholders elected the directorate consisting of the officers and B. J. Dickerson and G. E. Jordan. The company was the first to drill in the Northeast Louisiana field, having drilled the first well on the A. L. Smith tract in Ouachita. This company was the first to furnish gas to Monroe consumers. The company and the Southern Carbon company now supplies Monroe with gas under the name of the Natural Gas company.

Family Health

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN

(Editor Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine)

In contrast to the condition which develops when there is an excessive number of red blood cells are those forms of disease in which the number of such cells, and the amount of red coloring matter in the blood, are greatly reduced.

There are, of course, various causes of anemias. A person may lose large amounts of blood because of a severe hemorrhage as a result of which there is lessened ability of the blood to carry oxygen.

There are disease conditions which attack the blood-forming organs, so that there is faulty production of blood; and there also are instances, because of poisoning, infection, or some similar factor, in which the red blood cells are destroyed too rapidly.

It should be realized that formation and destruction of red blood cells goes on constantly in the human body. It has been estimated that from one-tenth to one-fifteenth of the total number of red cells are destroyed each day and that others are formed to take their places. This figure, however, may be too high, since the methods of estimation now available are not exceedingly accurate.

In developing his red blood cells, the human being seems to require iron, copper, certain glandular substances which are apparently available in the liver, some vitamins, and some material from the thyroid gland.

A severe deficiency or absence of any one of these elements will mean a disturbance in formation of red blood cells, and thereby may lead to anemia.

Loss of small amounts of blood by bleeding is usually compensated for by the blood-forming organs. Large losses of blood may be most serious. It has been found, for instance, that two-thirds of the blood in an animal's body may be removed very slowly and in small amounts over a period of 24 to 36 hours without causing its death. If, however, one-third of the animal's blood is suddenly removed, death follows.

Most people are so sensitive to the sight of blood or to the feeling of a hemorrhage, that the loss of blood usually is accompanied by psychic or mental symptoms, such as shock. The loss of any small amount of blood causes some people to faint promptly, and develop restlessness, cold sweat, pallor and thirst.

When hemorrhage occurs, the first step necessary to prevent the development of anemia is to stop the bleeding; next, to prevent shock, by applying warmth and giving considerable amounts of fluid. Transfusion of blood nowadays is used as an emergency measure, with great success. The doctor determines whether transfusion is necessary by measuring the blood pressure and the amount of red coloring matter in the blood.

Much more likely to produce anemia is the constant loss of small amounts of blood, such as may occur in ulcer of the stomach, bleeding piles, bleeding from the organs of women, and cancer. In such cases, the complexion of the victim changes to a putty color, there is weakness, shortness of breath, easy fatigue, and other symptoms which indicate to the doctor that anemia is developing.

Here again it is important to stop the bleeding not only by suitable treatment of the organs or conditions responsible, but also to build up the blood promptly by absolute rest and suitable diet, supplemented by liver and iron.

HOLLYWOOD SIGHTS and SOUNDS

By Paul Harrison

HOLLYWOOD—Around the studios almost everybody will acknowledge that Charles Oelze and Robert Sanders are the best comedy property men in the business. "Yeah," says slim, beak-nosed Oelze, "we've made about everything, I guess."

"Sure," echoes Sanders, who is pudgy, "we been working as a team for 15 years."

They have spent all that time filling orders for special contraptions and thinking up idiotic mechanical ideas of their own on the Hal Roach lot. Before they teamed up, Oelze was a circus chariot driver and Sanders was a property expert for vaudeville acts.

The boys don't mind revealing tricks of their trade. They like to talk. "Remember the time we had to make a frog spit?" asks the thin man. "Yeah," says the fat one. "We tried teaching the frog, but it was no go. So we put the old boy out of his misery and rigged him up with wires and put a tiny rubber tube in his mouth—"

"And I did the blowing," Oelze recalls. "Then there was that turkey we had to blow up because the script said it was supposed to be filled with yeast instead of dressing. That was a tough one—"

A Bust

"Until we were able to make a turkey out of rubber," Sanders chimes in. "We stuffed it with sawdust and real gravy and pumped air in through a pipe in its neck. She sure exploded. We had to make a lot of things that looked natural, but—"

"Like the automobile a long time ago, in the days when the studio couldn't afford a real one because it had to be smashed to smithereens. We built the whole thing out of cardboard, on a balsa wood frame—"

"And it looked so real we built three others and sold 'em to another studio. I like some of our trick effects best, like the time we rigged up a fake ocean so Patsy Kelly could fight an underwater duel with a swordfish. She didn't even get wet. We built a big glass tank only 10 inches from front to back, and put goldfish in the tank, and Patsy behind it. We shot the scene—"

"—right through the glass," interrupts Oelze, "and the goldfish looked like monsters, and the swordfish was made of rubber and worked with wires. But speaking of rubber fish—"

Splatter Experts

"Haw!—you mean about the trained seals," chuckles Sanders. "That was another picture where we were using rubber fish, and we had to put strips of tin in some of them to keep 'em from curling up. There were also a couple of seals—real ones, worth $5,000 apiece. Charlie throws one of the seals a rubber fish by mistake, and he gulps it down. We were pretty worried—"

"—on account of rubber isn't very digestible and we didn't know whether the fish had tin in it. So we fed the seal about a quart of castor oil."

"But I ain't sure yet," comments Sanders gloomily, "that we gave it to the right seal."

"Maybe the man would like to hear about the things we've thrown at actors," suggests Oelze. "Pies and eggs and all that. We have always favored lemon pies because they splatter better. About eggs—"

IN NEW YORK

©1934 NEA SERVICE, INC.

NEW YORK.—The power of the press is awesome to all celebrities who must curry the public's favor via the public prints. And several notables are not oblivious to the influence of embryo journalists—the editors of high school and college gazettes and sundry periodicals. But were they to grant an audience to every youthful Tom, Dick and Harry from the school papers, they'd hardly have time to become celebrities or live up to it.

At least two Rialto sattelites have solved the problem with mass interviews. Leslie Howard and Helen Hayes invented the mass interview as a means of disposing of all the matriculating reporters at once. The other day, Miss Hayes played hostess to several hundred editors of school journals on a theater stage and replied to all their queries from an improvised rostrum. The campus newsmen en masse submitted their questions via an appointed delegate. Miss Hayes gave the answers. There were many admiring sighs.

No less an occasion was Leslie Howard's mass interview with the undergraduate Richard Harding Davis' some time ago when he was asked (a) which type of girl he preferred, (b) did he wear, as rumored, a wig and (c) did he favor Broadway to Hollywood. There were other queries and as many adulating sighs from the swooning-sex section.

It is getting to be quite the vogue, the mass interview, and campusmen go for it. Soon the school quarterly may read like the fan magazine.

Sidewalk Merchants

One of the oldest and most venerable professions in New York is that of the "puller inner," the gent who loiters in front of a merchant's shop and uses oily persuasion upon potential customers. Tho "puller inner" thrives mainly on the Bowery, which is cluttered with innumerable clothiers' and haberdashers' coves, but he is in evidence all over the town. His prey is the window shopper and his business is urging the victim to inspect the goods inside.

Don't disparage the profession, for it is highly specialized; it requires a glib tongue and a working knowledge in psychology. I know one "puller inner," who, to advance himself in his career, made himself conversant with the works of Adler, Jung, Freud and Havelock Ellis. As a matter of fact, he speaks of opening a school for "puller inners."

Sucker Traps

But the "puller inner's" superior in parting gullible sheep from their wool are the Broadway auctioneers who bark bargains at languishing crowds through screechy microphones. They orate from elevated rostrums in public stores along the Rialto and their first offering is usually the "come on" —a sealed package, "contents unknown," to go to the highest bidder. Usually, the enclosed merchandise is worth considerably less than the highest bidder pays for it. But the Broadway auctioneer is as irresistible as he is ruthless. And a sucker, as Barnum sagely declared, is born every minute.

Title Burlesque

New high or low in something or other: A new Rialto entertainment is entitled "Gone With the Windsor."

Without Words

The conversation got around to shyness, and someone in the conclave observed that some of the most articulate men on paper are fairly inarticulate conversationally. By way of proof, he mentioned Thomas Wolfe, whose novels run into hundreds of thousands of eloquent words and who is virtually speechless when called upon to talk at social functions. Or Maxwell Anderson, the greatest playwright-poet of this generation, who speaks with great hesitancy. And Clifford Odets, fieriest of the new dramatists, who is no polished after-dinner speaker.

Katharine Cornell shuns personal appearances away from the stage. James T. Farrell, the novelist of "Studs Lonigan" fame, is a silent figure in company. And my friend cited others. It is said of the late Ring Lardner that when he joined a midnight conference about a show which he served as collaborator, he scribbled notes to his confreres instead of voicing his opinions.

JACK TORRANCE FIGHTS TONIGHT

Will Meet Johnny Saxon Of Beaumont, Another Newcomer

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 11.—(AP)—Jack Torrance, world's shotput record-holder and former Louisiana State football, basketball and track star who recently turned his athletic abilities to professional boxing, will get his second ring test in a scheduled ten-round bout at the Coliseum here tonight.

"Baby Jack" will level his huge fists on another comparative newcomer to the ring, Johnny Saxon, Beaumont, Tex., heavyweight.

New Orleans fight fans, who saw the Baton Rouge giant smash Owen Flynn to the mat in less than a round in his debut here recently, are eager to see Jack extended but the experts predict he will make quick work of the Texan.

Saxon, little known in southern fistic circles, has done his professional fighting in the east. He is 23, and, as in the case of Flynn, will have to spot the big shot-putter plenty of weight.

Jack will be shooting for another knockout, Herb Brodie, his manager, said today. He has worked hard since his last bout and will enter the ring in top shape, tipping the scales at 265, or 50 pounds less than he weighed when he competed in the Berlin Olympics last summer.

ILLNESS FORCES VINES TO REST

Goes To Hospital To Recuperate From Mild Influenza

CHICAGO, Jan. 11—(AP)—Ellsworth Vines, forced by illness to suspend temporarily his net tour with Fred Perry of England, rested comfortably today in St. Luke's hospital.

The California star, world's professional tennis champion, entered the institution suffering with a mild case of influenza and tonsilitis after playing a listless, losing straight set match against Perry Saturday night.

The physician said Vines was feeling "much better." His temperature was near normal in contrast to the 100.2 reported when he entered the hospital. No visitors were permitted, however, and telephone communications were severed to assure him complete rest for several days.

The Californian played with a fever of 101 in Perry's professional debut at Madison Square Garden last Wednesday night. In Cleveland two nights later the match was cut to two out of three sets instead of three out of five because of Vines' condition.

Vines plainly showed the effects of his illness in the Chicago match. He was slow afoot and frequently rested against the backdrops. Perry won easily, 6-0, 6-2, 6-3, for his third consecutive triumph.

Bill Tilden, former champion and Vines' opponent on a recent tour of the Orient, may play Perry at Detroit tomorrow night. Detroit promoters said yesterday the match might be postponed to Saturday night in the hope Vines would be in shape by then.

BRAMHAM SEES HOPE FOR GOOD BASEBALL YEAR

President Of National Association Of Leagues Optimistic

By W. G. Bramham

(President, National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues)

DURHAM, N. C., Jan. 11.—(AP)—At this time of the year when reflections and anticipations are in order, it is customary to take stock of the season just behind us and to visualize, as best we may, that which is down the highway ahead. We are inclined, as a rule, to see the future through rose-colored glasses, for a radiant picture of what is to come is most desirable, and it is a trait of human nature to forecast things as we would like them to occur.

I have no desire to be accused of issuing a stereotyped statement in behalf of the minor leagues of baseball. But as I glance at the record written on the page of 1936 it is impossible to ignore the fact that our leagues and clubs have enjoyed a splendid season. Nor is there anything in the offing to indicate that 1937 will not be as artistically and financially successful as its predecessor, if not more so.

I am, therefore, obliged to fall back, in a measure, to the recipe of former years and openly state that we of the minors are looking to 1937 without apprehension for the welfare of baseball.

There are a number of contributing points which lead to that thought.

During the 1936 season we had 26 leagues in operation, taking in 31 states of the union and three provinces in Canada. Every league which answered to the roll call at the start of the schedule was present at the adjournment of the season.

We cannot ask for more than that, and it is my pleasure again to report that such stability has been the rule, rather than the exception, for the past several years. I am repeating when I remind that since 1933 only one league which started as a member of our national association has failed to go through its season program. We closed that circuit after a short life when it was apparent that a continuation would bring only undesirable circumstances.

Baseball has enjoyed a greatly improved cooperation. This is existent between the clubs of the individual leagues, between the various leagues, and between the officials of the leagues and clubs and the offices of the national association. Such a state of affairs has been of mutual benefit to all, and it has played no minor part in the improved conditions of the game.

We are growing. That means an influx of many new club operators into our ranks. We do not expect them to grasp the intricate workings of baseball routine in a moment, or a week. But they have shown the willingness and cooperative spirit that has made the road much easier and the happy result is reflected in the record.

Before we turned over the calendar leaf to 1937, one new circuit, the Evergreen league, was added to our roster, and there are several more in the final stages of organization, ready to take their places in organized baseball. No doubt, we shall have 30 or more leagues offering clean, wholesome entertainment to a receptive public in 1937.

The players, themselves, furnish unmistakable evidence as to the upward trend of baseball. Each year, we enroll several thousand youngsters who sign their first professional contracts. There are several thousand others who apply at the gates, but are not quite ready for the professional plunge. When this number is given the consideration it deserves, it stands as an impregnable refutation of the old saying that baseball was getting out of the minds and hands of youth. We do not hear so much of that any more, and we are happy to tell the world there is no foundation for it.

With a watchful eye that will prevent the recurrence of a wave of unsound business methods which once gnawed at the pillars of our organization, we turn into 1937 with the forethought, the experience, the hope and the vigor which give us the best obtainable insurance of the desired results.

KEARNS OFFERS CHAMP $400,000 TO MEET LOUIS

Also Says He Will Give Negro $200,000 For Fight

DETROIT, Jan. 11—(AP)—A new bidder in the heavyweight fight market set up a $400,000 "cash on the line" offer today to tempt Champion Jimmy Braddock into meeting Joe Louis in the Brown Bomber's home town.

Jack Kearns, with his brand new title of promoter, offered that sum to Braddock to carry his crown into a ring at Navin field baseball park in June against Louis, provided a Max Schmeling fight fails to materialize.

Pre-supposing that the "Schmeling boycott" eventually will bar the German from meeting Braddock, Kearns wired Braddock of the offer and at the same time promised Louis $200,000.

The fight in Detroit, said Kearns, who seeks to drum up the motor city into a national boxing center, would draw $1,250,000.

It was the first move for a major fight on the part of Promoter Kearns, former manager of Jack Dempsey.

"Joe Gould, Braddock's manager, said he wants money for Braddock," said the doughty Kearns. "Well, I'm ready to give it to him. I'm ready to put it in the bank for him right now, at the minute he signs to fight Louis."

Kearns, who declined to disclose the identity of backers, but pointed to "my own experience" as one attribute, marked down a number of details which he said would ensure the success of a Braddock-Louis fight here.

Detroit's proximity to large cities including New York, an overnight ride, and Chicago, Philadelphia and Cleveland, he said, would make a crowd a "cinch."

"Louis," he said, "ought to fight before his home town, too, and that's enough to make it draw."

Navin field, the Detroit Tigers' home, has 40,000 permanent seats, which, Kearns said, could be increased to about 80,000 with accommodations on the playing field.

Kearns said he thought there was small chance that Schmeling could override the "boycott."

NEW STARS OF TRACK TO GET MANY CHANCES

Rideout Twins Of North Texas Invited To 'Big Time' Meets

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—(AP)—The winter track season, only two meets old, already has produced two athletes who may be heard from a few more times before the board-pounding season is over.

In the outdoor Sugar Bowl meet at New Orleans in December, it was Wayne Rideout of North Texas Teachers college who stole the show, aided by his twin brother, Blaine. He not only conquered Indiana's Don Lash in his specialty, the two mile run, but did it in time second only to the 8:58.3 Lash turned in at Princeton last year.

At the opening indoor meet Saturday, the Columbus council, Knights of Columbus games in Brooklyn, a Columbia university sophomore, Herb Weast, outshone Lash and other famous performers by running 300 meters in 10.6 seconds for a world indoor record.

Weast's remarkable performance clipped a full fifth of a second from the listed mark, held jointly by Bob McAllister and Karl Wildermuth, and considered almost unbeatable. Two watches caught him in the record time as he out-sprinted Marty Glickman, Olympic sprinter from Syracuse university, after trailing in the two shorter races of the sprint series.

The Rideout twins already have been invited to tour the "big time" meets, which begin next month with the Millrose games here and Weast probably will have plenty of chances to match strides with Glickman, Eulace Peacock, Ben Johnson and other sprint stars.

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 11—(AP)—Wise Mona, a six-year-old thoroughbred, has faced her last barrier. The mare was killed yesterday by her trainer after a bus had struck and crippled her.

The racehorse broke out of her stall at the Old Jefferson race track, where she had been quartered because of crowded conditions at the Fair Grounds, and wandered onto nearby Jefferson highway.

Lloyd Crayon, the bus driver, said the horse stepped in front of his machine. D. Emery, her trainer, soon afterward sent a bullet into the injured animal's head.

Wise Mona was the offspring of Wise Counsellor and was owned by S. Jones. She was entered usually in $1,000 claiming races.

MASONS HOLD STATE MEETING

Monroe Well Represented At Alexandria On Sunday

A state-wide rally of Royal Arch Masons was held in Alexandria Sunday, when Monroe was well represented. The total attendance was more than 100.

Those from Monroe who were present were: Mr. and Mrs. H. O. Hartman, Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Grice, Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Nelson, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Leigh, Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Swanson, Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Culver and J. W. Griffith.

The group visited the Masonic orphans' home in Alexandria and had dinner with the children. After the dinner, motion pictures were shown of the children at the home in various scenes. Conspicuous among the number was a picture taken of the Christmas eve party given the children recently.

From the home, the Masons went to the Masonic Temple, where a meeting was held late in the afternoon.

Practically all state officers were present and representatives attended from chapters at Monroe, Delhi, Rochelle, New Orleans, Lake Charles, Natchitoches, Oakdale, Shreveport and other cities and towns of the state.

The local party returned by automobile late Sunday night.

AT LOCAL THEATERS

AT THE PARAMOUNT—They're here again—the four comedians who made such great entertainment of "The Big Broadcast of 1937"—Jack Benny, George Burns and Gracie Allen, and Martha Raye—in another melange of beauty, charm, comedy and harmony. It's titled "College Holiday," and it plays today at the Paramount theater.

Mary Boland is also included in the cast of fun-makers, while Eleanore Whitney, Olympe Bradna, Louis DaPron and Ben Blue are on hand with specialty numbers. The romantic interest is maintained by Marsha Hunt and Leif Erikson. A chorus of beauties trained in special dance routines by LeRoy Prinz, adds to the glamour and beauty of the production.

"College Holiday" is an original screen comedy written by J. P. McEvoy. In it Benny is the press agent of a bankrupt hotel who flees in a bedsheet after the sheriff strips him of his clothing. Thus attired he is met by Miss Boland and Girardot, slightly balmy cultists, who are on their way to take over the hotel to try out their theories. They are dressed in ancient Roman garb.

Thinking Benny a member of the cult, they send him east to bring back a swarm of college boys and girls. Gracie Allen, also a member of the cult, is to pair the youngsters off.

Five hit tunes have been prepared for "College Holiday" by Ralph Rainger and Leo Robin and Bert Lane and Ralph Freed. These are "Sweetheart Waltz," "A Rhyme for Love," "So What?" "I Adore You" and "Who's That Knocking at My Heart?"

AT THE CAPITOL—Portraying the lusty, two-fisted battle of a woman newspaper editor against the forces of jealtousy, conspiracy and mob madness in a small town, "Laughing At Trouble," Twentieth Century-Fox's alternately gripping and uproarious new film drama plays today at the Capitol theater.

Jane Darwell, Sara Haden, Lois Wilson, Margaret Hamilton, Pert Kelton, and John Carradine are featured in the cast of this fast moving story of mirth, murder and mystery.

Chuckles and grins vie with thrills and lumps in the throat as Jane Darwell, the forthright woman editor who bosses a whole town and makes them like it, pits her brains and courage against a murderer, matches her shrewdness against a lynch-crazed mob, and saves an innocent boy's life.

The accused youth, Allan Lane, is torn from the arms of his sweetheart, Delma Byron, jailed and convicted of the strange murder of a local philanthropist. Convinced of his innocence and sensing treachery, Editor Darwell wages a lone battle for his life through her newspaper, and defies a posse of bloodthirsty townsmen when he escapes from prison and runs to her for refuge. Finally, she traces the real murderer by working on the jealous passions of a woman in love with the town's shyster lawyer, and reunites the two young lovers.

You'll live, love, laugh and thrill with this fast-moving, heart-stirring, and often devastatingly funny story of a small town newspaper woman and her neighbors.

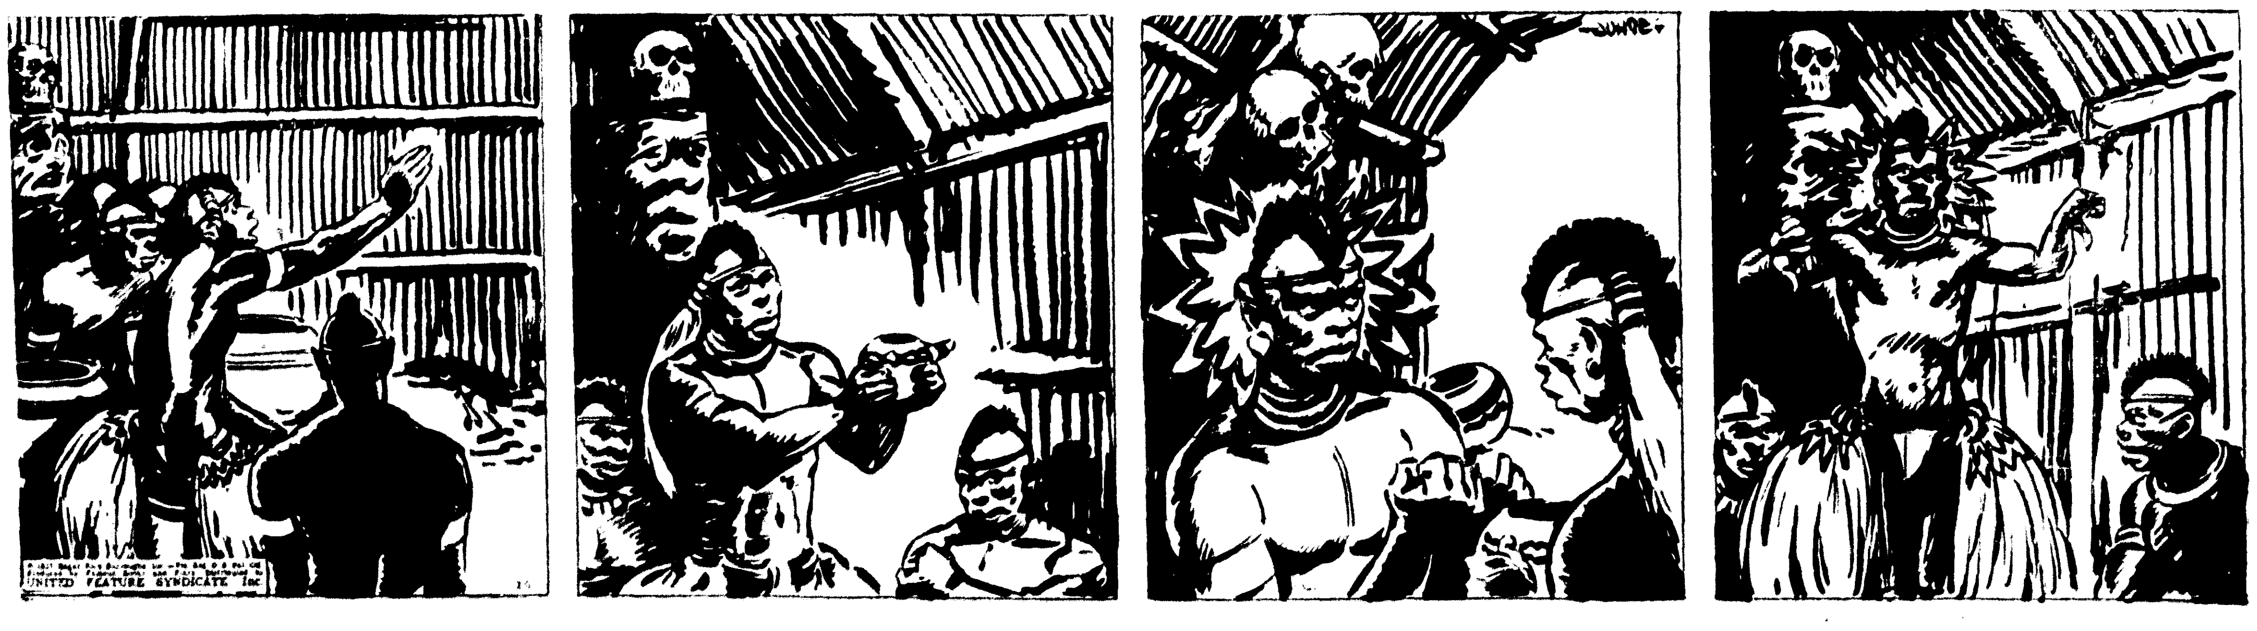
TARZAN'S QUEST

—By Edgar Rice Burroughs



UNITED FEATURE SYNDICATE, Inc.

A murmur of approval greeted the argument for Tarzan's death, but the witch-doctor rose to warn of dire calamity if they harmed the prisoner who, he assured them, was a Kavuru. "Even if we kill him in secret, the Kavuru have strange ways of knowing all things!"

Udalo decided to take a vote. Among the warriors he passed two bowls, one filled with pebbles, the others with kernels of corn. Then a gourd began the rounds as Udalo explained: "Those wish him to live, put in a kernel, a pebble is a vote for death!"

As the gourd traveled the grim circle, tense, savage eyes followed it back to Udalo's hands. The chief, a post-graduate in deviltry, was a poor student of mathematics; he could not count beyond his fingers. So, he poured the queer ballots on the ground.

With one hand he picked up a grain of corn while with the other he clutched a pebble, and placed each in its proper bowl. Soon he ran out of corn, and there were many pebbles left. Then he announced the result of the fateful vote. "The stranger dies!"

CUPID KEPT WAITING BECAUSE OF STRIKE

FLINT, Mich., Jan. 11.—(AP)—Cupid came out second best in a tangle with the "sit-down" strike at the Fisher Body plant No. 1 today.

Roy C. Travis, organizer for the United Automobile Workers of America, said a double wedding would be held, when the strike is over, for two "sit-downers" whose wedding dates conflicted with the labor controversy.

He explained that the weddings were postponed indefinitely because of a rule forbidding men leaving the besieged plant except in cases of death or serious illness in the immediate family. Travis declined to disclose the names of the strikers and their brides-to-be.

CAR STOLEN

Theft of a 1935 model Ford sedan at Winnsboro was reported to Monroe police Sunday. The car was painted black. It bore Louisiana license No. 212-462, and its motor number is 134326.

NEW YORK STOCKS

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—(AP)—Stock market buyers bid briskly for coppers, sugars and specialties today and many issues were given a lift of fractions to five points.

No immediate break seemed likely in the General Motors strike, but automotive leaders stiffened in late dealings along with the steel.

The trading pace was fast at times, with the ticker tape falling as much as three minutes behind. Offerings were well absorbed in the final hour. Transfers approximated 3,000,000 shares.

By Victor Eubank

NEW YORK, Jan. 11.—(AP)—Buying power got behind coppers and specialties in today's stock market and pushed up favorites fractions to two points.

At the same time many leaders were neglected and some were subjected to moderate selling pressure. Near the fourth hour the list was a bit ragged.

General Motors was in supply from the start, losing around a point, as the strike deadlock continued without signs of an immediate break. Chrysler was also on the downside, along with Studebaker.

Bonds were unable to make much progress and commodities moved unevenly.

On the upside were Anaconda, Kennecott, Howe Sound, Calumet Hecla, Inspiration, Miami, Cerro De Pasco, Nash-Kelvinator, Delaware & Hudson, Texas Pacific Coal Oil, Barnsdall, Lee Rubber, General Electric, Santa Fe, N. Y. Central, Brunswick-Balke, American Woolen, preferred, Canada Dry, Omnibus Corp, Budd Mfg., South Porto Rico Sugar, Cuban-American Sugar, American Telephone and North American.

At a standstill or lower were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Youngstown Sheet Tube, J. I. Case, International Harvester, Deere, Western Union, Wilson Co., Armour, Consolidated Edison, American Can, du Pont, U. S. Rubber, Yellow Truck, White Motors, Standard Oil of N. J., Loew's, Warner Bros., Westinghouse, Montgomery Ward and Sears Roebuck.

While a sharp upturn in earnings for Lee Rubber brought a jump in this issue, most other stocks in this category did little either way.

In addition to another lift in the export copper rate to a new peak since 1930, red metal shares apparently were bought on forecasts 1937 will witness exceptional expansion in the copper products industry.

Stone Marks Buckin' Hoss' Lonely Grave

JOHNSTOWN, Colo., Jan. 11—(AP)—There's a new headstone marking a lonely grave on Colorado's plains.

It is a cowboy's tribute to Midnight, the buckingest bronc of them all. On its face is graven an epitaph—a gem of sincerity, if not of poetic execution. It reads:

"Under this sod lies a great bucking hoss
"There never lived a cowboy he couldn't toss.
"His name was Midnight; his coat black as coal.
"If there is a hoss-heaven, please God, rest his soul."

The men who run rodeos, and the folks who attend them, too, remember Midnight. Courtland Jones, manager of the Denver stock show, announced the rodeo performance Saturday night will pause for one minute in silent tribute to the horse.

In life he was the arch enemy of the top hands who ride the nation's rodeo circuit. Only once in 14 years from coast to coast did a waddie ever manage to stay on him—and then Midnight was old and tired.

Last November, when Midnight died after three years in retirement, he was buried in a grave on the ranch of McCarthy and Elliott, who had shown him during his career.

The cowhands at the ranch talked, during the long evenings about the dynamic little black horse they couldn't conquer.

They recalled he wasn't vicious—that he never trampled a rider he'd tossed. Instead, he'd simply nose his victim into the tanbark and then trot back to the chutes—as though he realized it was only a game, after all.

Finally they decided to erect the marker—with a poem on it.

Every hand on the place collaborated in writing that epitaph, and it rhymes after a fashion.

JOBLESS LAW DEADLINE NEAR

Delay In Paying State Contribution Will Penalize Employer

BATON ROUGE, La., Jan. 11.—(Special)—Thousands of dollars are being received daily by the department of labor, representing employers' contributions due under the Louisiana unemployment compensation law, as the deadline for 1936 contributions nears, Commissioner B. W. Cason said today.

He estimated that receipts for 1936 should total more than $2,500,000.

Mr. Cason warned that employers subject to the Louisiana law are required to contribute nine-tenths of one per cent on their 1936 payrolls, and that this contribution is due January 15. He added, however, that if this contribution is paid to the state before January 31, 1937, the employers will be permitted to deduct the contribution from the federal excise tax of one per cent, providing the deduction does not exceed 90 per cent of the amount due.

"Delay in paying the state contribution will penalize the employers so that their contributions would be raised from a total of one per cent to 1.9 per cent," he pointed out.

The commissioner of labor explained that all employers of more than eight persons, except in agricultural labor, domestic service and certain other work exempted under the act, owe the 1936 contributions.

"The unemployment compensation division is making a drive to secure all contributions due before the federal deadline of January 31, 1937, arrives," he declared. "For the benefit of employers not familiar with the law and the method of filing reports, we have field representatives of the unemployment compensation division stationed in New Orleans, Shreveport, Monroe, Lake Charles and Alexandria. They are making their headquarters at the Louisiana state employment service offices, and will be more than glad to assist employers with their various types of problems."

the robbed drug store. Police identified the dead man as Frank Mills, 47, and said he had a long criminal record.

Police reported that the man first held up Eugene Smith, 38, at a filling station and robbed him of about $20.

Then he invaded Degruy's drug store and forced Degruy to give him $51.

Degruy told Ventura the robber had him backed into the rear of his store as he leisurely left by the front door of his corner store.

Degruy said he picked up his pistold, jumped through a side window, met the robber at the corner and ordered him to halt.

The robber started to run, he said, and he fired three shots into the man's body, killing him.

Ten minutes after the robber was shot down he mumbled to Ventura the name of Walter Stewart.

Charity hospital doctors pronounced him dead and then as his body was being placed in a patrol wagon some one in a gathering crowd called out that the dead man was "Walter Hutchinson," and said he had been released from the Louisiana penitentiary several months ago.

Police said Mills had a number of aliases. Anthony O'Boyle, of the New Orleans bureau of criminal identification, said Mills formerly was from St. Mary, W. Va., and had a long criminal record.

He said Mills was convicted of burglary in Bristol, Tenn., in 1909, and was sentenced to serve a year in Tennessee, was sentenced in Littleton, Ala., in 1924 to a year and a day for embezzlement, was given a year on a charge of grand larceny, in Montgomery, Ala., in 1924, and was sentenced to serve three years in the federal penitentiary in Atlanta in February 1927 for violation of the narcotic act and on August 11, 1931, he was given a term of 10 to 20 years in the Louisiana penitentiary for burglary.

Behind the Scenes

New proofs of railway progress come to light almost daily, yet many remain behind the scenes, little known to shipper or traveler.

In the shops the work of repairing freight cars has been modernized by adoption of the assembly line method and use of toil-saving tools.

These and many other improvements behind the scenes on the railroad make possible the improvements in service which have commanded nation-wide recognition. They too are part of the amazing record of railway progress and achievement.

CONFERENCE

tempted to start a "sit-down" strike there this morning. The non-union men said that seven other union members had walked out of the plant in sympathy with the would-be strikers.

P. H. McGregor, factory manager, announced that, because of a shortage of parts, the production line of the Pontiac plant would close late Tuesday. Eighteen hundred of the 9,300 employes will be laid off, McGregor said.

At Lansing, Mich., C. L. McCuen, president of the Oldsmobile division, has announced that 4,000 of the 12,000 employes in the Olds and Fisher Body plants at Lansing would be laid off tomorrow night because of strikes in other plants. Pontiac and Oldsmobile are the only General Motors divisions whose production lines have hitherto been unaffected.

At U. A. W. A. headquarters in Detroit, a union spokesman said he had been informed that company guards attempted to stop an undetermined number of men as they walked out of the Pontiac plant. The spokesman said several of the men were struck with clubs. He said he knew of no altercation between union and non-union workmen.

James F. Dewey, federal labor conciliator, remained in Detroit today but he said no conferences were scheduled with either party to the labor controversy. Governor Frank Murphy, who has acted as mediator in a futile attempt to compose the differences, returned to Lansing. He said, however, he would return to Detroit if his services were required.

Even before Martin and Brophy announced their impending departure for Washington, there had been indications that strike settlement efforts were being focused on the capital.

Department of labor officials in Washington gave increasing attention to the attempts to arrange a peace conference between the union and the General Motors management.

4 PEOPLE INJURED IN AUTO COLLISION

Four persons were receiving treatment at the St. Francis sanitarium Monday for injuries received in a collision between two automobiles about 6 p.m. Sunday on the Rayville road, eight miles from Monroe.

The injured were:

Mrs. T. J. Nixon of San Diego, Calif., fractures of six ribs, two of which were broken in two places; her husband, severe cut in lower lip.

G. E. Adamson of Dallas, Tex., contusions on face, head and chest; his chauffeur, Claude Johnson, negro, laceration of eyelid and contusion of eyeball.

Adamson said that when the accident occurred his car was traveling towards Monroe and that the Nixon car was traveling towards Rayville.

elected in recent years more because they were Democrats opposed to Republicans than because of any high batting average on the home grounds.

Often the incumbent's chief boast is that he was a bank cashier or member of the school board in a small town, or merely "active in civic affairs."

Perhaps a score base chief claim to fame on activity in the American Legion.

At Last, The AAA Author!

The Hon. Hampton P. Fulmer of South Carolina leads the field for length, with his biography of 42 lines. He is closely followed by Senators Jim Ham Lewis of Illinois and William G. McAdoo of California, with 40 lines apiece.

Congressman Fulmer needed space to give the names of his various opponents in years past and the pluralities by which he defeated them, not to mention how he got that $1,300,000 veterans' hospital for Columbia, S. C.

Most sensational of all is the congressman's description of himself as "author of the agricultural adjustment act."

Dozens of individuals have been accused of authorship of that act—including a Russian, Joe Stalin—but this appears to be the first time anyone ever accused Mr. Fulmer.

Some Of 'Em Are Mum

Members who contributed no information about themselves used to be rarities, but there are several such this year. Rush Dew Holt of West Virginia is the only senator among them. Representative Dewey Short of Ohio is the only Republican. Others who say nothing are Arthur W. Mitchell of Chicago (only negro member), Leo Kocialkowski of Chicago, Paul Maloney of Louisiana, Edward L. O'Neill of New Jersey, Marcellus Evans, Andrew L. Somers, and John J. Delaney—all three from Brooklyn, N. Y.—and James P. Buchanan and Milton H. West of Texas.

Failure of members to have their biographies inserted in the directory is variously attributed to modesty, the desire to appear modest, inability to think of anything to say, and plain laziness.

The champion joiner of the 75th congress would appear to be the Hon. Jesse Paine Wolcott, Republican, of Port Huron, Mich., who lets it be known that he belongs to the Masons, Knights of Pythias, Odd Fellows, Moose, Elks, American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars.

That seems to be two or three up on Sol Bloom of New York, who lists himself merely as a Shriner, Elk, Moose, Red Man, and I. O. B. B.

Maverick Likes Variety

On the other hand, there's Maury Maverick of Texas with a somewhat more unorthodox list of affiliations. He declares membership in the Episcopal church, Circus Fans of America, San Antonio Zoological society, American Legion, American Civil Liberties union, Sons of American Revolution, Public Ownership league, and National Popular Government league.

Senator Vic Donahey of Ohio stands out as the champion papa, stating that he has 10 children, all of whom but one son and one daughter are married.

Perhaps it's also worthy of note that Congressman Graham Barden of North Carolina was "born in Turkey township, N. C."; that Congressman Laurence Imhoff of Ohio was "born in Round Bottom, O."; and that Congressman John B. Snyder of Perryopolis, Pa., was "born in Upper Turkeyfoot township in the Keystone state."

INFLUENZA EPIDEMIC INVADES HOLLYWOOD

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 11.—(AP)—The flu has invaded Hollywood, sent high-priced stars to bed and jumbled picture schedules in the movie industry.

At Twentieth Century-Fox five players were on the sick list today—Loretta Young, Michael Whalen, Simone Simon, Allan Lane and Thomas Beck. Other companies reported cases of ailing personnel.

Last week Mary Rogers, daughter of Will Rogers, was forced to relinquish a movie role because of the flu.

Harold Lloyd's wife, parents and three children have been stricken in turn, but so far the comedian has escaped the illness.

hope of preserving every available clue.

The discovery was made between 10 and 11 a.m., Pacific time, by a boy, Gordon Morrow, son of Charles Morrow, who had gone hunting for rabbits and hawks.

A single wheel track led from the body to the graveled road less than 150 feet away.

Sheriff's deputies said the body answered descriptions of the Mattson boy in detail, but the face had been so beaten and soaked from blood that they could not be quite sure.

Tentative identification of the body as that of the Mattson boy was made by Sheriff Walker F. Faulkner and Coroner Stowell Smallacombe.

TACOMA, Wash., Jan. 11.—(AP)—Renewal of police activity, leading to discovery of a recently occupied shack on an island and an abandoned launch close by, focused attention today in the Charles Mattson kidnaping case.

Last week at the urgent request of Dr. W. W. Mattson, all activities of officers—local, state and federal—ceased while he carried on negotiations with the bearded man who abducted his 10-year-old son for $28,000 ransom December 27.

He said his son's safety must come first. Yesterday after his fears the boy might not be alive had been voiced in one of the "Mable to Ann" classified advertisements, Olympia and state police suddenly burst into activity. Whether Dr. Mattson knew of the new search and approved it was not disclosed. The well-to-do physician also has expressed fear of hijackers attempting to collect the ransom.

Chief William Cole of the state patrol disclaimed knowledge of yesterday's discoveries and Olympia police declined to comment.

In the much-discussed Shelton area, an abandoned shack was found on densely-wooded Squaxin island, near the southern extremity of Puget Sound.

Police spent Sunday afternoon searching for clues in the shack. A 24-foot automobile-motored launch, believed used by former occupants of the deserted building, was found near an Indian reservation on Hartstene island, across a narrow channel from Squaxin island.

The launch was similar to one reported seen cruising near the island last Tuesday by J. A. Houseman of Munsoe Point, near Shelton, with two men and a third person, apparently a small boy, in it.

The shack was believed abandoned only an hour before officers arrived yesterday morning. Fire in a small stove was just dying out. The building contained neither food nor clothing.

5 CANDIDATES TO MAKE RACE

J. M. Hammons, Former Chief Of West Monroe Police, Qualifies

Five persons had announced up to Monday that they will make the race for the office of Ouachita parish clerk of court. The latest to qualify to make the race was J. M. Hammons, former West Monroe police chief.

Others who have announced that they will make the race are W. F. Thurmon, acting clerk of the court; R. D. Farr, J. R. Tidwell and J. Porter Burgess.

Wednesday at midnight will mark the close of the period for qualifying to make the race. Candidates may file their declaration of intent to make the race with Alden T. Shotwell, chairman of the parish Democratic executive committee, or with C. H. McHenry, secretary of the committee.

The Democratic primary to fill the office of court clerk will be held Tuesday, January 26. The general election date is February 16.

PRESIDENT ACTS

vestigating committee came today, as congress began its second week with only routine business at hand.

Amid rumors of major consolidations impending, pleas of "save my job, if necessary" were reaching the capitol from office-holders.

Some officials believed four principal reorganization suggestions might be made:

1. That a welfare department of cabinet rank be set up to take over the social security and relief systems and possibly educational agencies.
2. That almost all government construction activities, such as roads, public works allotments and encouragement of housing, be combined, possibly under another cabinet post.
3. That the department of the interior be made a conservation department, in line with Secretary Ickes' preference, and be given conservation duties now exercised by the agriculture and other departments along with jurisdiction over the civilian conservation corps.
4. That, should "log-rolling" threaten achievement of reorganization by congress, the authority for minor shifts and consolidations be entrusted to the president.

Chairman Byrd, Democrat, Virginia, of the senate committee studying reorganization, planned to insist on economy as an objective as well as efficiency. He would consolidate many on the 24 lending agencies, for example, to prevent overlapping and waste.

Would-be economizers in congress awaited further word from the president on relief as well as reorganization before planning their tactics.

They appeared in a minority, vocally at least, but nevertheless determined to try to keep the immediate work relief appropriation below the $650,000,000 mentioned in the budget. Legislators from six western states banded behind Senator Boone, Democrat, Washington, to seek $850,000,000 to carry until July.

WHAT YOU SHOULD KNOW ABOUT FACE PIMPLES

These disfiguring little spots often result from a slight, temporary disturbance, or merely from incorrect cleansing, or sometimes they are more persistent due to deeper internal causes.

While properly treating the underlying cause, you can relieve the itchy, burning soreness and help your skin by using an ointment that will keep the medication in contact with the pimply spots. Apply it every night and leave it on all night. It does a world of good.

For more than 40 years people have used Resinol Ointment to fill this need. It soothes the irritation and aids healing. It also treats the oil pores where many surface pimples start. Washing first with Resinol Soap quickens the pleasing results.

Buy a jar of Resinol Ointment and cake of Resinol Soap from any druggist. For free sample write Resinol, Dept. 10, Baltimore, Md.

How Quick Does "BC" Ease Headaches and Neuralgia?

The answer is, "very quickly." Usually, it's a matter of just a few minutes, and this is true because "BC" is a prescription-type remedy, containing several quick-acting, reliable ingredients widely prescribed by physicians for aches and pains due to inorganic causes.

Use "BC" with the full assurance that it is in every sense a trustworthy remedy. You'll find that it is also effective for the relief of muscular aches; pain and discomfort due to simple head colds; simple nervousness and for headache and backache due to functional disturbances. Try "BC" and see if it doesn't give you relief in just a few minutes. Convenient 10c and 25c sizes, or by the dose at fountains. (adv.)
